LOCAL LODGE BUSY IN PREPARATION FOR THE COMING CONVENTION

The Glendale Elks' lodge is getting all dolled up for the big convention that comes off in Los Angeles next month, for it expects to entertain many visitors at that time. Floors have been redressed and a general freshening process is going on, because the organization wants to make a good impression on its guests.

The regular meeting held last night was large, about 300 in attendance, and was devoted to routine lodge work, except that twelve candidates were elected who will be initiated July 5. The regular meeting night falls on July 4, but because that is a national holiday a special dispensation has been secured to hold it on Tuesday evening.

Following the lodge session a fine program was put on by the Hollywood Ladies' quartet, which was immensely enjoyed.

Carpenters will complete their work on the third floors of the clubhouse tomorrow night. The painters are already busy. As soon as they finish the plumbers and electric light experts will come in to install fixtures, and then the furnishing men will be summoned. Practically all the suites have been engaged and the lodge expects the floor to be completed and occupied within thirty days.

BANK ROBBERS ESCAPE JAIL

(By International News Service)

ROANOAKE, Va., June 28.—Sawing their way through the steel bars of their cell and going through two doors they found unlocked, "Red" Gordon and Charles Wilkes, two alleged bank robbers, under 40 years' sentence, escaped from the local jail today. They were awaiting removal to the state penitentiary. Wilkes and Gordon were captured here November 19 after a pistol battle in which a confederate was killed and one officer injured. The fight occurred following the robbery of the Bank of Glasgow, from which bonds and currency amounting to over $100,000 were taken.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS

(By International News Service)

EL PASO, Tex., June 28.—Hoping to land at the Mineola flying field on Long Island before night, David R. Davis, wealthy California sportsman, planned to hop off this morning. The Davis transcontinental, which left Riverside, early yesterday in what Davis and his pilot, Eric Springer, hoped would be a non-stop flight to New York city was forced to land here owing to engine trouble. "We expect to reach New York by tonight," Davis said.

BELFAST, June 28.—The Ulster cabinet today accepted Premier Lloyd George's invitation to Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, to go to London to attend an Irish peace conference.

COURT HOUSE, CLEVELAND, O., June 28.—The defense will challenge the array of jurors summoned for duty in the trial of Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, alleged murderess of her husband, this morning, upon the ground that women are not qualified to act as jurors under the laws and constitution of Ohio, Francis W. Poulson announced this morning.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 28.—The opening gun in the fight of "reformers" to block the Dempsey-Carpentier championship fight was fired here shortly before noon today. Robert Watson, president of the International Reform bureau, accompanied by counsel and five local clergymen sought an order directing Tex Rickard and other promoters of the fight to show cause why an injunction restraining the match should not be issued. They made their petition before Vice Chancellor Stevenson in chancery court. Attorney Clark Gilson acted as their legal spokesman.

COURT HOUSE, CLEVELAND, O., June 28.—The right of women to sit as jurors in the trial of Catherine Eva Kaber, charged with the murder of her husband was upheld today by Judge Bernon. There are five women veniremen.

Treaty Causes Clash

(By International News Service)

PARIS, June 28.—A curious case wherein the Treaty of Versailles and its reparation clauses are mentioned is at present before French courts. Duke de Vicence in 1912 bought a house in the Avenue de Wagram in Paris, the purchase carrying with it a mortgage of 900,000 francs held by a Berlin firm. The duke assumed the mortgage and continued to pay interest until the outbreak of the war. The Berlin company today claims the whole house. The duke now refuses to either pay the interest or give up the house, stating that "he had a big property, estimated at 3,000,000 francs, at Caulaincourt in the north which was destroyed by the German army." He also points out that German property in France by the Treaty of Versailles is attributed to the French government. He, therefore, remarks that the French government owes him but cannot pay it till he has received compensation for his destroyed property at Caulaincourt.

FORMER RESIDENTS RETURN AFTER FIVE YEARS' ABSENCE

Mr. and Mrs. H. E Sohner, their daughter, Marion, and son, Harold, who lived here five years ago and went from Glendale to Moline, Ill., have now returned to this city to reside. They left Moline by auto on June 2, and reached here last week. For the present they are with friends in North Glendale, but have purchased a lot on West Salem street on which they will build in the near future. Marion was graduated from the Moline high school this year. Harold will enter Glendale high as a senior in the fall. They are all delighted to see Glendale again and their friends are as delighted to welcome them.

VOTING FOR CITY OFFICERS IS LIGHT

Up to noon today returns from the 12 precincts showed that the vote cast had been unusually light. Members of the election board were of the opinion that the greater part of the voting would take place in the late afternoon and evening. In some precincts the polls were practically deserted between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock.

At 12:30 today the various precincts showed the following number of votes had been cast:

Precinct No. 1 with a registration of 96 showed a vote of 24.

Precinct No. 2 with the heavy registration of 1537 showed a total of 203 votes.

Precinct No. 3 with 1100 registered showed 187 votes had been cast.

Precinct No. 4 with a registration of 630 showed 174 votes cast.

Precinct No. 5 where 555 were registered showed a vote of 166 cast.

Precinct No. 6 with 835 registered showed that 123 votes had been cast.

Precinct No. 7 with a registration of 710 showed 135 votes cast.

Precinct No. 8 where 675 were registered showed that 102 votes had been cast.

Precinct No. 9 with a registration of 610 showed 103 votes cast.

Precinct No. 10 with the high registration of 1050 showed only 187 as having voted.

Precinct No. 11 with a registration of 725 showed 118 votes had been cast.

REESE MARTIN IS ELECTED PRESIDENT

The big business transacted at this morning's session of the 35th annual convention of the California Christian Endeavor was the election of a president. The choice fell upon Reese Martin, who has been connected with the organization for many years and held almost every office in its gift, thus proving his fitness to lead this great body of Christian Endeavor standard bearers.

Another big decision was the vote to accept the very cordial invitation of Oakland to hold the next convention in that city.

ELECTION RETURNS WILL BE THROWN ON A SCREEN IN FRONT OF THE PRESS OFFICE BEGINNING AT 8:30

That Glendale voters may have metropolitan privileges and revel to the full in the excitement of an election that marks an epoch in the history of the city, The Glendale Daily Press has made arrangements to secure returns which will be flashed upon a screen in front of the newspaper plant at 222 South Brand boulevard, beginning about 8:30 p. m., and thus announce in characters which can be read from across the street and beyond the progress of the count, the votes for each candidate for city council, or for city clerk, the vote for bonds for city warehouses and for the swimming pool.

It is questionable whether the majority of citizens realize that this election marks the first participation by electors in a new form of municipal control which is laying the foundation for the government of the big city we confidently expect to be functioning here in a few years.

In casting our votes so blithely, following a spectacular campaign of the 15 candidates competing for the five places on our new city council, we are making history. The Glendale Daily Press, that it may be abreast of these stirring times, is putting the history into print as fast as the records are compiled and in type so big that all who run may read.

Watch for the rreturns. They will be prompt and reliable. If you are not sure just where 222 South Brand is, saunter down towards Colorado street, and you will see the big screen on the east side of the street, just north of that boulevard.

GRAND HIGH PRIEST JONES WILL SPEAK AT MASONIC BANQUETS

The Ontario Chapter of Royal Arch Masons are tonight giving a banquet at 6 o'clock to Master Masons of Ontario, Upland and Chino, and Grand High Priest Mattison B. Jones of this city will be a guest and speaker. At 8 o'clock the chapter will confer the Royal Arch degree. This is not the only function, however, in which Mr. Jones is participating this week. Tomorrow at 12:15 comes the dinner at the Jonathan club of the Masters and Wardens Masonic club of Los Angeles. Tomorrow night the Los Angeles Chapter, R. A. M., gives a smoker in Masonic Temple for the Master Masons of Los Angeles, whom Grand High Priest Jones will address. These affairs in which one body of Masons entertains another are very gratifying to Mr. Jones and that spirit will do much to promote the good of the order, he thinks.

SAILORS STORM CITY JAIL AND DEMAND THE RELEASE OF PRISONER

(By International News Service)

SEATTLE, Wash., June 28.—Following the arrest of Martin Foley, a retired sailor, at Bremerton late last night, more than 250 sailors from the navy yard stormed the city jail and demanded the prisoner's release. Police officers barricaded themselves on the inside and with drawn revolvers, held off the mob until the naval patrol arrived and dispersed the crowd, most of whom were in uniform.

Foley was arrested earlier in the evening on a charge of being disorderly. He appealed to the crowd of men in uniform who were on the street and they rushed the policemen and took Foley from them. The officers returned later with help and Foley was taken, handcuffed, and led to jail.

TANKER COLLIDES IN HEAVY FOG OFF ISLAND

NEW YORK, June 28.—The ferry Bronx, carrying between 1500 and 2000 passengers, collided with the Polarine, a tanker, in a heavy fog off St George, Staten Island, early today. The ferry was badly damaged, but there was no leak and she made her slip at St. George safely, landing all her passengers.

Bug Attacks Girl and Causes Wreck

(By International News Service)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., June 28.—A new cause for auto accidents has put in its appearance here. It is a big bug flying in the air, ready to nip the face of auto drivers and hence throw them from the road. Such was the experience of Miss Viola Messman, living west of here, when she was driving home from town. She was driving a Ford touring car along a level stretch twelve feet wide, embankments on both sides. The gang from the convict camp was working the road at this point, and the boss in charge was watching the car. He noticed it angle towards the ditch and saw it go gradually over until it toppled completely in the gutter of mud and water at the side. Astonished, he ran to the scene, but found no one badly injured, though the mother of the girl was bruised. Asking the reason for the accident, Miss Messman said, that a big bug got on her feet and was biting her so viciously that she was unable to control the car.

OAKLAND WANTS THE C. E. CONVENTION NEXT YEAR

The usual inspiring song service led by Otis Ironmonger featured last evening's session of the Christian Endeavor convention.

Oakland Bids for Convention

A. J. Gatter, who made the announcements read a letter of cordia invitation from the mayor of Oakland to the State Union to hold the 1922 convention in his city.

The Oakland delegation, one of the livest aggregations on the grounds, supplemented this invitation by one of their own, marching up onto the stage, singing a song of invitation to the accompaniment of weird, original musical(?) instruments.

A talk on "Our Union," by Harry Allan of San Francisco, assistant field secretary, was illustrated with interesting stereopticon pictures.

Many Postulants

Closing words by Paul C. Brown, field secretary, calling for decisions for whole-time service work as missionaries or other workers brought responses from a large number of young people present.

"When Jesus Died" was the beautiful song of the convention soloist, Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts.

MONTECITA GUEST IS ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

Mrs. J. G. Monahan of 925 Stocker street, entertained Saturday with a dinner for Miss Grace Mosier's house guest, Mrs. Vera Brownell of Montecita. Other guests for whom covers were laid were Mrs. C. M. Mosier, Lt. Com. Spalding and Mrs. Spalding of San Pedro and Wilfred Sutton of Eagle Rock. The dinner was followed by a pleasant evening over the card tables.

THE LAUDERDALES MOVE TO NEW HOME

Mrs. John Lauderdale and daughters, Misses Clara and Marguerite, who have been living on South Louise street, moved into their new home on Vine street yesterday. Miss Clara is a teacher of history in Glendale high. Miss Marguerite has been teaching in Pomona but is to teach in her own city next year in the Columbus avenue school kindergarten. In celebration of her birthday, which occurred last week, seven members of the Lauderdale family took an auto beach jaunt which took in Long Beach, Huntington Beach, Anaheim, Santa Ana, etc., and in the course of which they refreshed themselves with a beefsteak barbecue on the sands at Sunset Beach.

ENERGETIC WORK FOR SWIMMING POOL VOTES

Judge Lowe reports that some patriot with the interests of Glendale boys and girls at heart, got out during the night and painted in bold letters on the sidewalk approaching the polls in precinct No. 2, where no voter passing over it could fail to see, the legend: "Vote yes for the swimming pool bonds." Up to date no real opponents have been discovered, though there are objectors complaining because the proposed bond issue is too small. However, that can be easily remedied if the rest of the community share the opinion and get busy on another bond issue to increase the size of the pool and beautify its park setting.

Marry in haste and hunt a house at leisure.

Far-Reaching Effects of Act of Vandalism

Mrs. Clara F. Brown is very much disgusted with the youth of Glendale and declared yesterday that no swimming pool for their benefit would get her vote. The children who read this story about vandalism on the part of some youngster or youngsters unknown, which made her feel as she does, should make a note of the far-reaching effect of a bad act. Should the issue be close, one adverse vote mightt be the cause of defeating the bond issue to provide the boys and girls of this city with a swimming place, and the bad boy who caused that adverse vote would thus be responsible for depriving all his playmates of pleasures they would otherwise enjoy. Let us hope it does not turn out that way, but the story is this:

Mrs. Clara Brown, who has been a resident of Glendale for some time recently sold property she owned and occupied at 331 Hawthorne street and commenced the erection of a new house at 316 Hawthorne street. She is equipping it with every convenience and comfort and one of the comforts is a solar heater placed in the roof of the house and glass covered. It was quite an expensive proposition, and persons who have watched a home being built can imagine her dismay and irritation to discover Saturday morning that the glass in the heater receptacle which was all right when she left the house Friday night was shattered Saturday morning with a litter on the floor beneath of hard plums and other fruit showing that it had been used as a target by bad boys. She will be put to the trouble and additional cost of sending for an expert to repair it, and is offering a cash reward for information proving who was guilty of the damage.

May Have Tooth in Brain

(By International News Service)

PARIS, June 28.—Professor de Lapersonne, of the French Academy of Medicine, has found a girl of 15 in France who has not only eye-teeth in her mouth but small and sound mouth teeth in one of her eyes. This girl has suffered with her eyes since her first birthday and her parents, after consulting many specialists, decided to call in Professor Lapersonne. Submitting the child to an X-ray examination he found small teeth in perfect shape in the orbit of the left eye. He says the removal of these teeth would not only be painful but extremely dangerous. He cannot state whether her teeth will continue to grow, either. All he can vouch is that they are in the eye. He further states that it is quite impracticable for the girl to make use of these teeth. While, as seems only natural, the girl suffered with her toothed-eye the teeth have not so far interfered with her sight. Professor Lapersonne reported on the matter to the French Academy of Medicine.

CLARENCE KIMLIN AND FAMILY WILL MOTOR TO TULARE

Clarence Kimlin, though a candidate for the office of city councilman, is quite a philosopher and does not seem to worry about whether he achieves the goal or not. He is carrying out plans made some time ago and leaving with his family by auto tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock for a combined business and pleasure tour to Lodi, Fresno, Hanford and lastly, Tulare, where the Glendale sanitarium owns 80 acres of unimproved land, which he will look over with a view to determining how best to dispose of it. The party will be gone until Sunday night, July 3.

MRS. W. E. EVANS GIVES LUNCHEON

Mrs. W. E. Evans of North Orange street yesterday afternoon entertained a few friends in honor of her sister-in-law, Miss Mayme Evans, with a card party at the Flintridge Country club. High scores were made by Mrs. Douglas Newell and Mrs. Harry Lockwood, Miss Evans receiving the guest of honor prize. Miss Esther Loomis, accompanied by Mrs. H. R. Boyer at the piano, sang several solos. Summer flowers and candles made gay the smartly appointed large table at which the two-course luncheon was served.

Letters recently received from Mr. Evans stated that he expected to leave New York tomorrow, then to spend a day or two in Washington, and after that to go to Kentucky on his way home. Mrs. Evans and family will leave Saturday for Hermosa beach to remain until September.

AIRPLANE USED BY PHYSICIAN

(By International News Service)

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., June 28.—Another chapter was added to the annals of the air mail service during the recent flood rampage of the Platte river when a mail plane was pressed into service to carry a surgeon to the bedside of a dying woman, isolated by the high waeers.

Dr. J. S. Simms was the physician who needed surgical assistance. He was at the home of Mrs. Anna Jandebauer, 65, two miles south of North Platte. He summoned Dr. C. A. Shelby at North Platte and asked him to hurry to the woman's home.

But floods barred the way. Bridges were out.

Dr. Shelby appealed to C. A. Sluder, superintendent of the North Platte air mail field. The official said he lacked authority of his superior but obtained it by wireless from Superintendent Dumphy at Cheyenne.

Pilot H. G. Smith of the Omaha-Salt Lake division, made the flight.

Dr. Selby performed the operation and Dr. Simms returned by plane with them to North Platte. c

R. C. DOUGHERTY HAS SEEN NO CITY TO COMPARE WITH GLENDALE

The truly marvelous growth of a municipality like Glendale is best observed by one who has seen it at various intervals during the past 15 years. R. C. Dougherty with wife and son, a hardware merchant of Reading, Pa., and a brother of Mrs. Mottern, after spending the last two weeks at the home of his siser, 211 North Adams street, left with his family over the Salt Lake via Salt Lake City, Denver, Kansas City and St. Louis, to his eastern home, on this last Saturday.

Mr. Dougherty frankly admits he has seen nothing in recent years to compare with the rapid strides made in home-building as in this city, which is particularly striking on account of the pronounced slump in the east in building operations.

His observations of Glendale and its need to make it a better city for the business and traveling man is the need of a large modern office building, several modern fire-proof storage warehouses, wholesale houses for the distribution of hardware, groceries, dry goods, notions, seeds and implements to the dealers throughout this territory. He observes also the great need of a modern hotel for the accommodation of the traveling man.

Mr. Dougherty first visited Glendale in 1906 and has been making business trips to the coast at different times since then, but this is the first time he has been able to get west since 1915, during which time Glendale has gone forward from a small town to a flourishing city.

He declares that he will sound the praises of Glendale to all interested listeners when he returns to his eastern home. Foremost of all the charms of Southern California, he will dwell especially on the Mount Lowe trip, for in his opinion there is no more interesting trip to be taken in this country equal to it, in wonder, scenic beauty and grandeur. He left with a firm resolve to take this same Mount Lowe trip upon each successive visit to Southern California.

DOROTHEA BOURNE SUSTAINS PAINFUL ACCIDENT

Dorothea Bourne, 8 years old, of 213 East Elk avenue, met with a very painful accident Sunday noon.

Her father, B. F. Bourne, had the electric wringer going for a small hurry-up job and Dorothea was reading to him as he worked. In the absorption of her reading, she threw out her left hand and the index finger caught between the rollers. At her scream of pain Mr. Bourne sprang to her aid, reversed the action of the wringer and loosed her hand. Dr. Young was summoned and responded very quickly. He found that the flesh around and back of the first joint of the finger was literally torn apart and fifteen stitches were required to bring it together. It is giving Dorothea great pain but is getting well as fast as could be expected.

PENITENTIARY KEY IN HIS STOMACH

(By International News Service)

OMAHA, June 28.—Henry Marshall's key to the state penitentiary lay for three months in his vermiform appendix, and he never knew it.

During that time he languished in county jail, following his conviction and sentence of from three to fifteen years on March 15, for holding up John Schroeder on the night of November 10, 1920, waiting for a "vacancy" to occur in the overcrowded state penitentiary at Lincoln.

Tuesday afternoon Henry developed appendicitis but he could not be operated on in Omaha, for the reason that he is a state prisoner.

He was taken to Lincoln for an operation at the orthopedic hospital.

Henry is technically a state prisoner, and when he recovers from his operation, it will be up to the state to look after him.

Probably the gates of the state prison will swing wide open to welcome him in.

VAN DYKE'S BEAUTIFUL ODE, "GOD OF THE OPEN AIR" RECITED AT EARLY MORNING HILLTOP SERVICE

Poem That Is Worthy of Much More Study Is Reproduced for the Benefit of Christian Endeavor Delegates Who Are Attending This Convention

Those who heard Leon V. Shaw's reading from Van Dyke's beautiful ode, "God of the Open Air," from the hilltop at the head of Louise street in the peaceful hush of the early Sunday morning hour will long remember it.

In order that the young people who heard it may keep it with them long enough to feel its meaning, The Daily Press herewith reproduces the parts read by Mr. Shaw.

"Metre and rhyme have a deep relation to the rhythm of human emotion," says Dr. Van Dyke himself, "of which I grow more sure the less I can explain it."

"GOD OF THE OPEN AIR"

Thou who hast made Thy dwelling fair
With flowers below, above with starry lights,
And set Thine altars everywhere—
On mountain heights,
In woodlands dim with many a dream,
In valleys bright with springs,
And on the curving capes of every stream:
Thou who hast taken to Thyself the wings
Of morning, to abide
Upon the secret places of the sea,
And on far islands, where the tide
Visits the beauty of untrodden shores,
Waiting for worshippers to come to Thee
In Thy great out-of-doors!
To Thee I turn, to Thee I make my prayer,
God of the open air.

These are the gifts I ask
Of Thee, Spirit serene:
Strength for the daily task,
Courage to face the road,
Good cheer to help me bear the traveler's load,
And, for the hours of rest that come between,
An inward joy in all things heard and seen.
These are the sins I fain
Would have Thee take away:
Malice and cold disdain,
Hot anger, sullen hate,
Scorn of the lowly, envy of the great,
And discontent that casts a shadow gray
On all the brightness of the common day.
These are the things I prize
And hold of dearest worth:
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of forests, comfort of the grass,
Music of birds, murmur of little rills,
Shadows of clouds that swiftly pass,
And, after showers,
The smell of flowers
And of the good brown earth—
And, best of all, along the way, friendship and mirth.
So let me keep
These treasures of the humble heart
In true possession, owning them by love;
And when at last I can no longer move
Among them freely, but must part
From the green fields and the waters clear,
Let me not creep
Into some darkened room and hide
From all that makes the world so bright and dear;
But throw the windows wide
To welcome in the light;
And, while I clasp a well-beloved hand,
Let me once more have sight
Of the deep sky and the far-smiling land—
Then gently fall on sleep,
And breathe my body back to Nature's care,
My spirit out to Thee, God of the open air.

MISSIONARY PLAY TO BE PRESENTED TOMORROW

"The God of the Pill Bottle" Will Be Put On by Long Beach Young People

Tomorrow morning a clever missionary play called "The God of the Pill Bottle," will be given by a group of young people known as "The Loyalty Endeavorers" of the First Christian church of Long Beach, who come specially for the purpose.

They have not been delegates to the convention because most of them are employed and could not get away except for this one day. They have given it more than once in Long Beach and have been often invited elsewhere but have always declined because they could not give the time until this special occasion. Its purpose is to interest young people in the work of medical missionaries and to visualize the work they do.

The little drama gets its name from the outcast Hindoo widow who comes crawling in seeking the aid of the medical missionary, and calling for the God of the Pill Bottle.

The chief characters in the cast are:

The Medical Missionary, Howard Hendry; wife of the Medical Missionary, Lela Howland; their daughter, Mrs: Charles Tandy; three girl graduates, Isabelle Boisvert, Vivian Pope and Irene Williams; the Hindoo widow, Louise Shaffer.

The slender plot concerns the visit of the medical missionary's daughter to her parents in the mission field, where she realizes for the first time the tremendous need for such service and decides to return to the United States and fit herself to come back and assist her father. The rest of the play deals with the pathetic and humorous incidents of the mission life as revealed in the scenes in which about 13 patients, picturesquely garbed, take part.

The theme should be of tremendous interest to the Christian Endeavorers and the young people who are to take the trouble to come from Long Beach to put it on certainly deserve the compliment of a big audience.

YOUNG PEOPLE WILL HOLD CONFERENCE

Announcement has been made at the Central Christian Church of the Young People's Summer Conference and encampment which is to begin July 1 on the new Methodist Camp Grounds in Santa Monica Canyon. It is expected that quite a group will go from the Glendale Church, some as delegates, others as volunteers. While the matter was up, J. H. Garnsey asked the privilege of paying the expense of sending Willard Leared, the Sunday School Superintendent who is greatly beloved and who will leave in the fall to enter an eastern Bible School.

CONCENTRATION IS KEYNOTE OF C. E.

Delegates Are Working Every Minute—Great Amount of Business Done

Concentration has been reduced to an exact science by this Christian Endeavor bunch. When it is realized that practically a year's work of Christian Endeavor is boiled down into five days, it will be seen that some speed is necessary. Yesterday's program was a sample.

From 8 to 8:15 there were five Quiet Hour meetings held and immediately following and lasting 45 minutes were five Bible study classes. These were led by Rev. M. Howard Fagan, in the M. E. church; Rev. E. P. Ryland, in the Sunday school room at same church; Rev. J. R. Pratt, in the Tabernacle; Rev. Dennison A. Russell, in the Christian church; Rev. James Leishman, for Intermediate, in the Baptist church.

From 10:10 to 11 denominational conferences were held in the various churches. This is a new feature and the object is to inspire more intense loyalty to "our own church" and thereby enhance loyalty to Christian Endeavor in general.

Then at 11:10 the morning assembly opened in the tabernacle with a devotional and song service led by Otis Ironmonger; Paul Brown then gave a very snappy 15 minutes demonstration of "Helping You to Help Yourselves" by conducting a book sale and in that time disposed of $55 worth of helps in the shape of books on Christian Endeavor work and methods. The usual grist of announcements of meetings, picnics, banquets and so on was then made. Right in the midst of this a long line of Alameda county boosters filed in, playing jazz horns, and singing a song of welcome to the state convention at Oakland in 1922. They marched up on the platform, gave their song and yell, then marched down again, amid wild applause.

Miss Hancie Naylor then gave a short talk on "The Quiet Hour," illustrating it by a pageant showing how the burdens of social problems, temptations and unsaved souls roll off in answer to the quiet hour prayer to Him who said "Come unto me all ye who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest." There are three requisites for a "Quiet Hour Comrade," she said, and these are: A definite prayer list, a home-prayer circle and an inner prayer circle.

Miss Angeline spoke on the Tenth Legion, saying that more than 700 new tithers have already been secured and that it is hoped to reach the goal of 1000 who gave a tenth to the Lord ere the convention closes. California leads the world in tithers now, she said, nine counties having already reached their goal, one four times over and another three times over. One negro society of 17 members has 13 tithers.

The afternoon was devoted mainly to recreation. The Juniors were at Verdugo Park all afternoon and lunch was served to them at 1 o'clock. The Intermediates joined them at 2:30 and enjoyed a picnic supper at about 5. The Seniors attended a ball game at the High school grounds, between the teams picked respectively from members of the executive committee and the state at large. The annual banquet of the Alumni Association took place at 4:30 in the M. E. Church.

The day closed with a great meeting in the Tabernacle, at which Dr. Shelton spoke.

"CHRISTIANITY IS BY FAR THE GREATEST FRATERNITY IN THE WORLD"—SHELTON

Audience Greeted His Appearance With Prolonged Applause and Rose as One Man to Give Him Chautauqua Salute—Interesting Account of Captivity

Only the pen of Robert Louis Stevenson could do justice to the story told by Dr. A. L. Shelton, missionary to Tibet, at last evening's meeting at the Christian Endeavor conventioin auditorium.

Warmly Greeted

Prolonged applause and cheers greeted the appearance of Dr. Shelton, whose capture by a desperate robber band some time ago was for months the theme of newspaper stories all over the civilized world and the problem of three great governments, our own, the French and the Chinese.

After the applause last night had subsided, and Dr. Shelton got ready to speak, the audience rose as one man to give him the Chautauqua salute.

Life in Tibet

In 1912 the Tibetans drove out the Chinese and have since been practically independent, but fighting on the border continues incessantly. Tibet is the only country in which the church and state are one, the only pure theocracy in the world; the ruler is almost worshipped as a god by his people.

Dr. Shelton and his wife had lived in Tibet for over 16 years. He told of the superstitious fears of the people they had to combat and their aversions at first to his methods of healing. He says he has often performed surgical operations with a crowd of 150 looking on. If he had demanded the usual isolated operating room of the hospitals of civilized countries the Tibetans would have spread the most horrible tales of how he cut out people's eyes and livers to make charms and brew magic.

The Sheltons lived 50 days from a railroad station, their nearest white neighbor was 500 miles away and as a physician Dr. Shelton had little competition—it was 700 miles to the next doctor.

To most people it might seem a great hardship to live so far away from civilization that it took four months to get letters and papers from home; yet the Sheltons were supremely contented there, and their daughters, Doris and Dorothy, now 16 and 13 respectively, objected strenuously to coming to the United States to finish their education.

Capture by Robber Band

Their father and mother decided, however, that this must be done, and it was while the family was on its way down from Tibet, the top of the world, and within a two days' journey of the railroad, that the robber band swooped down upon them and captured the doctor.

His guides and guard took to their heels at the first appearance of the bandits, who told Dr. Shelton their chief was a little ways back in the hills and wished to see him. Believing that the robbers wanted to get possession of his goods which were coming along behind his party, and that when they had secured these they would be on their way, Dr. Shelton willingly went with them telling his wife and daughters he would be back in 20 minutes.

It was 71 days—days of the most severe privation and hardship—before he saw his family again.

Wanted Arms and Ammunition

The robber chief told him he was to be held for a ransom of $50,000 worth of arms and ammunition—they did not want money. The doctor refused to send this word to his friends. He knew if this request were acceded to, not a missionary in the country would be safe: as soon as one had been ransomed the robbers would ride off to capture another and hold him for ransom.

Meanwhile the soldiers of the government had been apprised of Dr. Shelton's dangerous predicament and were on the trail of the abductors, who kept Dr. Shelton running for three days and nights without rest, to keep ahead of the rescuers.

Father Bailey to the Rescue

Word of the capture of the doc was brought immediately to Father Bailey, the Catholic priest who had worked for 30 years in Tibet; he rode as fast as he could to the place where Mrs. Shelton and the girls had been left alone by the bandits and escorted them to the capital. The bandits had intended capturing the women, also, but decided they could not run fast enough to keep ahead of the soldiers.

Having seen Dr. Shelton's family to safety, Father Bailey got on his horse and rode day and night to secure the doctor's release. It looked once as if he might succeed, after 37 days of effort. The robber chief was not all bad, says Dr. Shelton. When he found the doctor obdurate on the subject of the proposed ransom, in spite of the fact that he was spent with the hardships of running through the canyons and passes as well as nearly starved for decent food, he changed his conditions; he would release the doctor provided he was assured of a blanket pardon for himself and his 800 men.

Governor Broke Faith

To this the governor of the country agreed—and then broke faith with the bandit, trying to trick him, surround him and capture him. Then there was 40 days more of strenuous travel and hardship for Dr. Shelton, the trials of the uncivilized life of the bandits being aggravated by a tumor on the neck from which the doctor had been suffering for some time. Two serious battles were fought between the bandits and the soldiers in pursuit, in which many were killed and wounded.

The robbers finally dropped the doctor in a haymow in a small village because they thought he was dying. They instructed the guard they left with him to bury him secretly if he died and if he got better to let them know and they would come for him again.

Rescue Dramatic

After five days a rumor arose that the soldiers were coming and the guard and indeed the entire village fled. The rumor was untrue; it was not the soldiers, but some high official traveling with his retinue through

No carping critic can find aught to cavil at in the dress of the young ladies attending the convention. Modish and in good taste are the costumes of these girls, yet modest and without the extremes so many girls of today think necessary to fashionable dress.

ENDEAVORERS PLAY BRILLIANT GAME OF BASEBALL

With a tie score in the last frame of the ninth inning of a game staged on the high school diamond yesterday afternoon, between a team representing the executive committee of the Christian Endeavor union and a team selected from the state delegates at large, Campbell of the latter combination slammed out a hot infield liner that was too hefty for the executives to handle and brought in the run that broke up the old game, and left the state team on the long end of an 8 to 7 score.

From the moment that Umpire Valentine called "play ball," it was anyone's game—but nobody seemed to want it. The playing had all the earmarks of giveaway, each side trying its best to let the other score, until the sixth inning, when Raisner stuck his spikes in the slab and determined to pitch the executives to victory. This was a mistake, for it made the state team wild to win.

At this juncture of the game, Rev. C. M. Calderwood of the Glendale Congregational church, went out to call balls and strikes, particularly the latter, which proved effective in bringing the game to a more rapid conclusion and the crowd in the bleachers to its feet in indignation.

As a pitcher, Raisner of the executives, had an edge on Cockran, hurler for the state team. He pitched airtight ball from the moment he threw the first ball over the catcher's head, struck out three batters in a row and would have won the game handily had it not been for a three-bagger with a man on base that netted the winning tally for the state nine.

Otis Ironmonger, convention song leader, proved a tower of strength on first base for the victorious team, while Mathewson, emulating his famous namesake, starred for the losing executives. They lined up as follows:

Executives		All-State
Crozier	R.F.	King
Laton	C.F.	Hogan
Mathewson	C.F.	Campbell
Robinson	S.S.	Thompson
Van Meter	3rd	Griffith
Snyder	2nd	Hubbard
Dingle	1st	Ironmonger
Anderson	C.	Young
Raisner	P.	Cockran

It is a privilege to Mrs. Dick to have him for a guest and like the rest of us she feels that the government cannot do too much for the boys who made such tremendous sacrifices for their country.

Who will help to dry the tears of a little girl? Wee Virginia Hanger of 337 West Ivy has lost her playfellow, a baby bull pup about two and a half months old. The dog can be easily identified for he is brown, with a white stripe around his neck, a bobbed tail and is very small. Mrs. Hanger cannot believe that any one would be mean enough to steal the little fellow and she is hoping he has simply been lost and that the finder will return the pup to Virginia. She is advertising in the Lost and Found column.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat Too Much Meat Which Clogs Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

You Can't Buy A Packard for the Price of a Ford

Neither can you buy meat from choice young steers for the same price as you can that from old cows, etc.

The Glendale Market enjoys one of the largest meat patronages in Glendale for the reason we are extremely careful in selecting meats. Our buyer personally visits the packing houses and chooses only the choicest quarters—for which we pay a little more and charge a trifle more. The difference in what we charge, however, for the best meats, and what some charge for inferior grades is so small as to be scarcely noticeable. People who enjoy eating tender, luscious steaks and other cuts, appreciate the quality of meat we sell, and are our regular patrons.

You, too, would be pleased with our meats and service, if you would but give us a trial.

PERPETUATING ROOSEVELTISM

The Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association announces that the actual work of restoring the birthplace of Theodore Roosevelt has begun. The association, with funds obtained by popular subscription, hopes to restore the house in which the late colonel was born in New York City. The adjoining house, which was the home of Mr. Roosevelt's uncle and which is a duplicate of the Roosevelt house, will also be restored and will be used as a sort of an office by the association which, according to its own statement, "aims at making the American child Roosevelt-minded, by developing in it a sense of civic responsibility and otherwise fitting it for a life of service to the community."

The ambition of the memorial association certainly cannot be criticised. As time passes and the more enduring virtues of the former President gain prominence in contrast to forgotten petty faults, it becomes evident that Theodore Roosevelt gave America something which should be perpetuated. There was his sterling Americanism, his vigor of mind, no less than body, his democratic interest in all people, his insistence upon justice and higher ideals for American manhood. Possessing these qualities, it is indeed fitting that an organization should exist which will endeavor to instill in the minds of the Americans of tomorrow the virtues of a great American citizen.

The biography of Theodore Roosevelt is an inspiration and an influential guide to every red-blooded American boy. It should be studied in every school room and the memorial association could do no better than to see that no lad in his early teens is without a copy of the life of Theodore Roosevelt. An acquaintance with his life does not stir the sort of hero worship which convinces one that he can never be like him; it stimulates the desire to emulate him.

The county jail at Muncie, Ind., was broken into recently and several cases of liquor stolen. Thus does prohibition empty the jails.

GRAVE AND GAY

An elderly man was persuaded by one of his sons to go with him to a football game.

The son, intent upon giving his father a good time, had bought two seats in the grandstand.

"Now," said the son joyfully, "you'll see more excitement for your $2 than you've ever seen before."

The old man grunted.

"I don't know so much about that," he said dismally. "Two dollars was all I paid for my marriage license!"

The reason the modern young man doesn't get down on his knees to propose is because the girl is sitting on them.

Man is naturally an optimist. He cherishes the memory of a big night, but he soon forgets how he felt next morning.

Never talk about your aches and pains. You will get the other fellow started and feel under obligation to listen.

"Oh, well," replied Ole gloomily, "Aye s'pose Aye get little of each."

"Are you going to take the children out today Henry?" asked Mrs. Gotham.

"No, dear. I'm not. I'm going hunting." replied Mr. Gotham.

"Well, can't you take them hunting with you?"

"No, I'm afraid."

"Afraid of what?"

"Afraid I won't get what I'm going after if I take them. I'm going flat hunting."

The sweet young thing had been unable to buy the article she wanted but in each case the clerk had assured her that "next time" it would assuredly be in stock. One day she called at the store to find a new clerk on the job.

"Do you have spats yet?" she inquired.

The clerk blushed. "Oh, ma'am," he stammered, "I'm not living with my wife now."

WOMAN'S COZY CORNER

By JOSEPHINE FRANCE

Castoff Woolen Underwear

Castoff woolen underwear dyed a dark color can be made into sweaters, jerseys and petticoats for children. Buttonhole the edges with yarn as a hem would be. Practical and pretty garments for the little folks can thus be made.

Ink Stains

This has been tried on the finest georgette waist with success:

Place the article in strong sunlight, covering the stain with lemon juice and rubbing common salt into the stain with the lemon juice every once in a while until the stain has wholly or nearly disappeared, then wash in luke-warm water and you will find the stain completely removed.

Gas Saver

This is a good gas saver. When preparing boiled dinners I also prepare some pudding which is to be steamed and place in steamer above meat or whatever is to be boiled sufficiently long to steam pudding and therefore one burner serves for cooking the dinner and dessert.

Seat for Old Chair

A very satisfactory new seat for an old chair may be made by tearing denim, brown or green, into two-inch strips and folding in the cut edges, making an inch strip. Weave these strips as any basket splints are woven, first placing all the strips in one direction, then weaving the others through alternately, keeping the smooth side up. Old braid could be used, but denim is much stronger.

Capitalizing on Shortness

Readymade petticoats are often much too long for small women and have to be shortened in some way. If you have this trouble, buy a silk or heatherbloom petticoat as long as can be found, cut off the top of it to the length desired and put a draw string in the top of it. Then take the piece that you have cut off from the top of it, turn it upside down and hem the top, put in a draw string and put some kind of heavy ribbon of the same color for straps over the shoulders and you have a camisole to match your petticoat for the cost of the petticoat alone. Oftentimes those silk camisoles are very expensive. Of course the top of the camisole may be scalloped or trimmed as desired.

To Remove Grease

Cover the grease spot thickly with powdered magnesia and let it remain for 24 hours or more. If there is much grease repeat with fresh magnesia. This can be relied on to "draw out" the grease and it will not leave a ring of different color.

In Beating Eggs

A teaspoonful of cold water added to the white of an egg will cause it to whip more quickly, besides increasing the quantity.

Silver Tarnish

Salt will remove the tarnish on silver caused by eggs when applied dry with soft cloth.

Hemming a Linen Tablecloth

Instead of sewing by hand use No. 80 thread and sew on machine. It saves lots of time and looks very well.

Whitening Towels

To whiten Turkish towels that are used daily put two tablespoons of turpentine in the boiling suds and boil 15 or 20 minutes with lid on boiler and your towels will be beautifully white when dry.

Pants for Creeper

Take a pair of stocking legs and cut a slit in them half way down from the top. Then sew them together so they form a pair of pants, and then run a tape through the top. They are the finest thing for the baby that creeps. Saves on the baby's stockings and keeps the dress from being in the way when the child is on the floor.

Card Table Cover

Sanitas cloth, such as is being used for doilies, bound with wool skirt braid and with some appropriate design painted or stenciled on, makes an attractive cover for a card table and can be wiped off. Saves a lot of washing and is novel.

Old Hot Water Bags

When hot water bags leak don't discard them. Cover the hole with adhesive plaster and use them with hot salt or sand. They will retain the heat better than water.

Eileen Percy a Hit In Tomboy Picture

Eileen Percy furnishes some fine comedy entertainment in her latest William Fox picture, "The Tomboy." A country village furnishes the background for a story that has plenty of humor and a little pathos.

Miss Percy, as a charming young hoyden, is a great baseball player—in fact, she is a second "Babe" Ruth when it comes to slamming 'em out. She also makes the bootleggers leg it out of town; and to cap the climax of events she wins the love of a handsome and wealthy stranger and thereby brings down on herself the envy of the mothers of marriageable daughters—and their gossip.

Opera Troupe in Movie Company

Benjamin B. Hampton's splendid photoplay of Zane Grey's best seller, "The Man of the Forest," contains an opera troupe of no mean ability among the celebrities in its all-star cast of screen players. Inspired by the presence among them of Carl Gantvoort, internationally famed light opera baritone who plays the title role, "Milt Dale," the following "opera troupe" was organized for the entertainment of the company:

Carl Gantvoort, baritone; Robert McKim, basso; Claire Adams, soprano; Frank Hayes, tenor; Eugenia Gilbert, contralto; Charlotte Pierce, alto. They were accompanied by the studio orchestra of an organ, violin, saxophone and guitar.

POPULAR SCIENCE

Culture pearls have been a subject of experiment by K. Mikimoto, Japan's pioneer pearl farmer since 1890. His first commercial product was half-pearls or "blisters," formed on the oyster shell over a bit of introduced nacre; and his first announcement of complete round pearls, not attached to the shell is stated by Dr. H. L. Jameson in Nature to have been made about 1912, the first considerable crop having been obtained in 1913. Since then there has been a regular trade in these pearls. In the patented process of production requiring the most skilful manipulation, a bit of nacre or other nucleus is enclosed in a piece of shell, secreting epidemis cut from the mantle of an oyster and is then transplanted into the subepidermal tissues of a second oyster. The development of a sufficient coating around the mother pearl bead requires several years—one statement being seven years. The Mikimoto pearl seems to differ from the natural pearl in having a larger nucleus—if the latter has any at all—and a mother of pearl nucleus, that cannot occur in nature By a slight modication of the process, it is stated, the culture pearls can be made identical with the natural.

The "phonophor" for people hard of hearing is the smallest telephone yet produced. It is about an inch long, and its open end being inserted in the ear is held there by its shaping, no strap being necessary. It is adjustable for maximum clearness. The usual membrane could not be employed and a piece of specially treated skin with a bit of iron in its center is substituted.

The "peak load" of electric generating stations is reached during only a short part of each twenty-four hours or at certain regular periods, and at other times the plans are operating much below their maximum capacity. As one means of utilizing the extra power that could be cheaply made available, W. S. Merrill, of the General Electric company, suggests a new development of "home manufacture." In the past, particularly in European countries, practically all manufacture in some industries was performed by families and individuals, the materials being left with them and the finished articles collected, and in the United States this was true to a great extent of the clothing industry. The system has been eliminated by modern methods of intensive production with automatic machinery. With cheap electric power available in small units, however, it should be practically to adapt automatic machines for many purposes to the home garage or cellar, and some of these could run throughout the day without attention from the operator. Cotter pins, small nuts, bolts, screws, nails, and wood novelties are among possible products, while several persons might combine in making parts to be assembled in les simple articles.

A new plywood for airplanes, claimed to be the strongest material of its weight yet devised, is strengthened and given rigidity and resilience by sewing its parts together. The layers are first united with waterproof cement, and the material is then reinforced with parallel rows of stitches an inch and a quarter apart. The sheets so made from one-eighth to five-eighths inch in thickness are supplied in any shape, in any size up to 8 by 60 feet.

In analyses of steels that has been exposed to the air more than thirty years, those which had resisted rust were found to contain more than 1 per cent of copper, but specimens having less copper were badly oxidized.

Vivid Story From Lips Of Stillman Woman

MRS. JAMES A. STILLMAN

(Written by MARGERY REX for the International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 28.—Woman, the home maker, tends the hearth. She keeps her domestic fires burning with a true, steady glow. She carefully sweeps away rubbish and will not permit the firelight to go out.

But often woman, the wanderer, the wanton, passes by. She peeps in at domestic harmony. Ah! she, too, will enter to take warmth and comfort at being by the woman who dwells rightfully within.

The intruder fans the flame. Destruction follows. Homes are razed and hearths blackened.

And no wife may aspire to cope with the passing flatterer. The true wife does not fawn upon nor often idle compliments in order to get some favor. She often must tell unpleasant truths.

Her views upon this phase of married life were expressed strikingly by Mrs. Anna Urquhart Potter Stillman when she gave an interview at the home of John E. Mack, in Poughkeepsie.

Maintains Her Composure

Presiding at a dainty tea table on the front porch of the Mack residence, Mrs. Stillman, who has been bitterly and publicly attacked by her husband, James A. Stillman, nevertheless maintains her composure and is able calmly to discuss her opinions.

"You know," she began, "no wife can hope to keep up with the woman who flatters. A wife wishes her husband to amount to something. She must often—to that end—tell him the truth."

Such face to face, even in the strong and revealing glare of the afternoon sun, Mrs. Stillman seems to have none of the tired and disillusionetd look that is faintly suggested in some of her photographs. No trace of make-up has contributed to her fresh and blooming appearance. A little fatigued from the long hearing in court during the hot midday, she nevertheless graciously consents to talk over matters just a little more.

"The flatterers measure the amount of affection to display by the size of the emerald in view," she smiled amusedly.

"Listeners sit silently, for the most part, attentive to every word from this amazingly girlish-looking woman who is a wife and mother and upon whose slender shoulders an all-too-heavy burden has been placed.

Mrs. Stillman perhaps understands the psychology of clothes—her attire is well adapted to produce cheerfulness of spirit and the poise which comes with perfect comfort. A loose blouse of white linen, with a gay tie of satin about the throat, tops a plaited skirt of red and white, and snowy sport shoes, with white silk stockings. She wears some small plain gold bracelets on her slender wrist and a heavy gold chain about her neck.

Woman Is the Incentive

"Woman has coached and aided man and pushed him along. To her all progress is due," Mrs. Stillman continues.

"The real woman puts those she loves ahead. Man has a little the best of it at present, even though men are not able to get around women as easily now as formerly. Sons used to get around their mothers, and later on they got around women who love others more than themselves.

"I blame the system under which he was raised." Mrs. Stillman is now referring to the husband who would repudiate and condemn her. "If his father had only brought him up right!

"About his home there was the old-fashioned secretiveness—no love, affection or recognition of the part these emotions play in life—no knowledge of their proper place in our existence.

"Such people don't appreciate just how real these things are—how real to other people.

"Environment does a lot for children. Later, when character is formed, they leave the home—and meet the world—as competent individuals.

Everything Depends on Home

"Everything depends on the home and the interest the parents have in their children.

"But the whole trouble with women now is that they are three-fourths feeling, one-fourth intelligence. They should be half feeling and half intelligence. They need a better rudder which such a perfect balance would give them.

"Woman's place is not man's—each has his or her own certain place in the world. Women more and more are becoming the equals of men. I don't mean that woman must compete with man or take his job away, but she must not let him get around her so easily.

"Woman suffers more than she should because she is not better balanced, as I have said.

"But there is good and bad in everyone. No one is all bad or all good.

"I still believe—at least I hope—that Stillman can be a success in the world if he will. But he has given up his time and attention to a woman who has almost hypnotized him—who, for instance, his filled up his mind with a lot of stuff about mind reading, carrying about a rabbit's foot for luck and equally silly things.

If He Had No Money

"This woman has been able to instigate him to this lawsuit against me and his child.

"How much do you think such a woman would care for him if he had no money?" She smiled mockingly, a spark of fun in her gray eyes. "Would he be so popular if he were poor, do you think?"

"Well, the man of great ego is easily reached by flattery, and so many are willing to offer it," Mrs. Stillman said.

"But that does not make for happiness or contentment."

Suggestion was made that Mrs. Stillman might like surcease from questions and interviews, but she denied that and said she was tired only.

Knows She Is in the Right

"Oh, for a long, cool ride on the open road after one of these days in court!" she said longingly. But a photographer assailed her leisure to request her to pose for more pictures.

Trying to oblige every questioner and every demand for a moment of her time would tire the average person, who had in addition no severe mental strain to bear, but "Fifi" Stillman is growing stronger and firmer in the stand she has taken against those who would crush her.

"Does my whole future depend on the success of the present suit?" she repeated in reply to a question, "No, indeed. Whether I win or lose I shall have the satisfaction and self-confidence that come from knowing one's self in the right. Feeling that way I would suffer no loss of morale, no matter what the outcome."

GLENDALE RETAINS BUILDING LEAD

Far Ahead of Many Cities Several Times Her Size and Leads All in Her Class

Glendale maintained her position as seventh California city in value of building permits for May, and ninth on the Pacific coast. Los Angeles was second in the nation, with $7,433,760. New York led, as usual, but with the unprecedented total of $46,307,686. On account of strikes and lockouts, Chicago dropped from second place and over $15,000,000 in April, to fifth and only $2,967,750 in May.

The California and other coast cities that went ahead of Glendale are all from four to thirty-five times her size.

The May building for the county was 4 per cent less than that of April. The following table of May building records in various cities of the country, ranging from 6,000,000 down to 50,000 in population, will be of interest to all:

PUEBLO IS STILL IN GREAT NEED

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Beach of 1227 North Brand, who came to Southern California from Pueblo, Colo., have received letters from Mr. Beach's brother and other friends and relatives they left behind them which indicates that the half has never been told regarding the flood devastation of that city. In speaking of the matter Mrs. Beach referred with considerable feeling to the statement made by Secretary Weeks and published broadcast to the effect that no further supplies were needed for the stricken city which was "swamped with money and food stuffs." As soon as it appeared in print she says, an indignation meeting was held in Pueblo attended by representatives from every big organization—the Red Cross, Chamber of Commerce, Elks, etc., to protest against such an entirely misleading statement. It was most discouraging coming at that time when public interest was running high. The letters the Beachs have received lately state that the Assistant Postmaster General, who is a Pueblo man, has been inspecting the city and is returning to Washington with facts and figures designed to correct the misstatements sent out from the capital. Although it is three weeks since the disaster citizens are not allowed on the street after 8 o'clock in the evening for their own safety and to keep idle curiosity seekers from prowling about the ruins.

MRS. ALEXANDER IS RECUPERATING

Mrs. W. R. Alexander of 1214 South Maryland, who fell while alighting from a car last week and broke a bone in her left ankle, is doing well, her friends report. Her foot is in a cast in which it will have to remain for probably another week, but she is able to get around the house more or less. She will be confined to her home by the accident however, for some time.

To cheer her invalidism, old friends of herself and mother—Mrs. Cecil Browne and sister, Mrs. Mary Quick, who formerly resided in the Illinois town which Mrs. Hayes and Mrs. Alexander called home for many years, spent yesterday at the Alexander residence and there was a thorough review of old times and scenes dear to all.

A sort of miniature typewriter has been invented for marking linen.

NOTED SOPRANO AND SECRETARY TO CARUSO ARE MARRIED

(By International News Service)

BUFFALO, June 28.—Nina Morgana, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, was married here to Bruno Zirato, secretary to Enrico Caruso. Their wedding was originally set for last April, but owing to the critical illness of Caruso at that time, it was postponed.

Nina Morgana.

Had Caruso not been forced to go to Italy for his health he would have been best man at the wedding. However, Caruso delegated Giovanni Benchetti, of Buffalo, to represent him.

Miss Amalie Scheeler attended the bride. It was a simple wedding. Following the ceremony the bridal couple and a party of eighteen had a wedding breakfast at the Iroquois hotel.

Bruno Zirato.

After their honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Zirato will return to New York on August 1 and occupy Caruso's apartments in the Hotel Vanderbilt.

Caruso before sailing bestowed this present on Zirato. In addition he gave a beautiful diamond ring to the bride.

Among the many messages of felicitation was a cablegram from Giulio Gatti-Casazza, director of the Metropolitan Opera company, who is in Milan; others from Giovanni Martinnelli, Claudia Muzio and Adamo Didur, who are in South America, and still others from Guiseppe de Luca, Tetrazzini and Titta Ruffo, who are in Italy.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with white feathers, and a georgette hat. She was given in marriage by her brother, Charles Morgana, vice-president of a local motor company.

Miss Morgana is a Buffalo girl.

WE THANK YOU, SAN FRANCISCO

GLENDALE—The most progressive and rapid growing town in Southern California—was the phrase descriptive of this city applied by representatives of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce in suggesting a possible business location to J. F. Solmie, of Seattle, who applied there for information as to where he might find advantageous conditions for the establishment of a whole sale silk house in the southern part of the state.

Yesterday morning Mr. Solmie visited the local chamber of commerce and made inquiries for J. A. Rhoades, secretary, regarding conditions favorable to his business. He made himself known through the boost the San Francisco chamber had given Glendale.

PETITIONS FOR A SEWERAGE SYSTEM

Petitions will be circulated in the business district of Glendale pledging support to the construction of a sewerage system to embrace the six blocks bounded by Maryland Avenue on the east, Wilson Street on the north, Orange Street on the south and Colorado Boulevard on the south. The disposal of the sewage will be through sub-level tanks.

For a considerable time such a sewerage system has been agitated in the business district. The Chamber of Commerce is now lending its support to the project and will have petitions available for signature at their offices. The sewerage mains will be laid in such a way as to be easily available for connection with any plumbing that may be installed in business houses included within this district.

No One Hurt

N. W. McMillan, 6720 Hollywood Boulevard, Los Angeles, reported to the police Sunday that while driving his automobile north on San Fernando Road yesterday another machine struck his, damaging the frame of his car. None of the persons concerned in the accident were injured.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE BY MRS. BLANCHE K. CORBY, C. S. B.

Entitled, "CHRISTIAN SCIENCE THE TRUTH THAT HEALS"

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The lecturer was introduced by Mr. Dale G. Vaughn, first reader, First Church of Christ, Scientist, Glendale.

The lecturer said:

"The time for thinkers has come," writes Mrs. Eddy in the preface of her great work, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." In the recorded history of man, there has never been such intense thinking on things spiritual and religious as there is today. Advanced thinkers are realizing that the world can never be rebuilt from the old basis of materiality and continue in a state anything short of anarchy; and that a true constructive league can be founded only upon the basis of spiritual regeneration. Consequently there are more people seeking sincerely and earnestly for a knowledge of the truth than ever before. The old theological concepts and philosophical theories no longer answer an inquiring people; the demand today is for proof or demonstrated evidence. Wherever lectures on Christian Science are given, large numbers congregate in the hope of hearing something helpful, something usable in the nature of religion.

A Christian Science lecture is not for the purpose of proselyting or of urging Christian Science upon the unwilling; it is simply to give to enquirers a better understanding of God and his relation to man. Christian Science, known to the world only a little more than fifty years, has had an unprecedented growth. The majority of its adherents have been healed of sickness or saved from wretchedness and despair. Its great ranks are largely made up of those who have been compelled to turn to God for aid when all other means have failed. Few people turn to God for daily and hourly help in times of adversity until all material means have proved unavailing. Man has not believed that God is an available and immediate help under all conditions, but those who have been denied all hope of healing from the popular systems, those who have suffered discouragement and who despair with the poor comfort of expected death as a release, and who at last have turned to Christian Science and have found a knowledge of God which gave health and happiness, rejoice in the conviction that Christian Science is the revelation of truth to which Jesus referred when he said, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." When one is made free through the demonstration of the truth, he is free indeed, because God is the liberator. God has revealed himself to man whenever man has been in greatest need of deliverance. A savior has always appeared to humanity when there was the greatest need for a savior; always the need is for deliverance from the evils of material sense, and the efforts of those great men and women who saw the necessity of replacing materialism by spiritual regeneration have made immortal history.

Every thinking person in this audience is conscious of the existence of things. He knows also that all things to exist must have cause, government, and law, and consequently that there is the truth about all existing things. Christian Science proclaims that the one and only cause of all things is God. It declares that God is infinite and is therefore divine Mind; the infinite can not possibly be other than Mind, for with all that is less than mind we associate the limitations of form, size, length, breadth, color, and the like. Christian Science declares that the one infinite Mind or the one infinity of good is all life, law, power, intelligence, activity, and is the principle underlying all. Then it declares that Mind can be expressed only in thoughts or ideas; it therefore follows that God's universe including man is mental, is composed of spiritual ideas, and that these ideas range from the least up to man in the image and likeness of God. The Scripture says that God was satisfied with this creation which he pronounced good.

The one infinity of good does not include the socalled mystery of evil, for to the infinity of good there can be no consciousness of evil. Man, the divine image and likeness, can know and express only that which God ordained for man.

Christian Science teaches that to know God aright it must be understood that God is Principle. Why should it be thought strange that Christian Scientists believe God to be divine Principle? Christian Science is the science of Christianity and all scientific demonstrations, whether physical or mental, are the result of an understanding of laws and the employment of them. Mathematics, music, architecture, everything that is worked out according to rule or method is in accordance with principle; then it should not be considered inconsistent that man, the spiritual image and likeness of God, is governed by the law of divine Principle instead of being left to the chance and change of human belief. The meaning of the word principle is: basis or foundation which governs all that proceeds from it; we find therefore that it is the most appropriate term for God.

The highest concept of God to be attained is that of Love, expressed in the compassionate loving Christ Jesus, who "came to save that which was lost." Through what is called the supreme sacrifice, he overcame death on the cross, revealing to men their Godgiven dominion. The one consciousness of Love can have no consciousness of anything but love. It is universal love poured out to all mankind. Jesus taught that the tender love of the fatherhood of God is greater and can do more for us than the limited human concept of love. He said, "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?" (Matt. 7:11). Another example of Love understood and practiced is found in this age in the life of the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy. Because of Mrs. Eddy's love for humanity, her life was one of loving obedience to God, devoted to the establishment of Christian Science on earth, that all might share the blessing it bestows in health and happiness. Her whole concern was to reveal to her fellowmen Christ's plan of salvation. This concept that God is Love, is made practical in a more loving brotherhood; it destroys all strife, hatred, and revenge, and takes away the desire to injure in any way one's brother. A right sense of love is not talking but doing. As Mrs. Eddy has so beautifully expressed it, it is, "Love reflected in love." (Science and Health, p. 17.)

We have barely touched the hem of Christ's garment today in our understanding that God is Love, but the glimpses already gained have enabled Christian Scientists to heal the sick and to be helpful to humanity. This impelling force of Love will continue until, "all shall know Him from the least unto the greatest," and God's love be manifested among men.

It is because humanity has believed that it is subject to the chance and change of human conditions that it has desired an adequate savior. It has believed that MAN is fallen and subject to all manner of suffering and disease. It has inwardly protested against the cruelty and injustice of intolerable conditions caused by the inhumanity of men; but the protest was feeble and of little avail, because mankind has been educated to believe that evil is inevitable and that there is no way of escape but through death. Splendid men and women have devoted their lives to the amelioration of the wrongs of their fellowmen; here and there love's sacrifice has made a bright spot for a day, but the ceaseless tragedy of human life goes on. The recent war raised humanity to great heights of sacrifice, but the aftermath does not reveal a purified world, and warfare continues. This condition exists because of the false concept of God that has been instilled into consciousness from generation to generation. Religionists have given too much thought to original sin and have dwelt too little upon such passages of holy writ as, "Now are we the sons of God."

When we believe that God sends or permits suffering, that he takes our loved ones from us as a means of disciplining us, are we not trudging along with the old theological beliefs which close the door to the goodness of God in human experience and to the great blessings that inevitably follow the recognition of man as the image and likeness of God?

While in religion the old concept of God has been tenaciously held, there have been progress, discovery, and invention in connection with all other things. The business world of today could not continue its great activities with the systems of hundreds of years ago; indeed, its ideals and methods are continuously changing. The conduct of business upon a more systematic, a more scientific basis, as it were, is constantly sought; and yet, a scientific knowledge of God is far more important for the welfare of mankind than a scientific business system. Christian Science improves every department of life and aids in the accomplishment of every right purpose. A correct, demonstrable knowledge of God made practical in right thinking will regulate business and bring out a high standard of business activity.

We all have encountered the condition of thought called pessimistic; it is always gloomy, downcast, always prophesying evil. This state of thought manifests itself in the many careworn, anxious faces that we see on the street, in the cars, and in all public assemblies. It induces a constant state of torment and casts a shadow on everything with which it comes in contact. Its unfortunate effect is illustrated by the following incident. A little boy returned from his first day of school in tears, saying he wasn't going to school any more because he didn't like the teacher. He was persuaded to go on several subsequent days, but he grew only more unhappy. He was asked if his teacher scolded him. "No," he said, "she doesn't scold me." "Well, does she punish you?" they asked. "No, not that, but I just don't like school for that teacher is never glad about anything." It is all a matter of thought. If the mental viewpoint could be changed, an entirely different MAN would be expressed. To accomplish good we must expect to accomplish good, and this joyous expectancy will be apparent, for we should go about radiating the gladness of living. We read in Proverbs (17:22), "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine: but a broken spirit drieth the bones."

Christian Science brings the cheering message that there is an escape from evil, a way out of it all, a way complete in its salvation. It is not a new savior; it is the savior of the prophets and of Jesus who declared the way of salvation to be at hand. Jesus taught that it is the evil which proceeds from the heart that injures a man, in other words, that it is wrong thinking and not conditions of matter that must be corrected. In the degree that man ceases to think evil and sin, and learns to dwell in good will evil and sin disappear. It is the carnal mind that is at enmity with the divine Mind. The Scriptures say that the carnal mind is death; then as man ceases to think after the manner of the carnal mind, he gains life and health.

The sense of fear and death came with the mist that arose from the earth of material sense as it is related in the second chapter of Genesis. It obscured the heavenly vision which showed God to be Spirit and man to be wholly spiritual. Christian Science is restoring this vision today in all its beauty, power, and grandeur. It is the revelation of truth bringing salvation to the inhabitants of the earth. Jesus drew a sharp line between spirit and matter when he said, "God is a Spirit and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." (John 4:24.) He declared also, "That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit," showing that there is no connecting link between matter and spirit. He showed clearly that salvation is found only in the spiritualization of thought.

It is generally considered that spirituality is a supernatural, vague, or indefinite condition of being which cannot be made practical. Christian Science removes spirituality from the realm of the supernatural and impractical and reveals it as a normal condition. Spirituality is right thinking, and can be applied in all of the detail and routine of every day life. Christian Science has taught us that we can think rightly about all that we have to do. The remedy for all evil lies in the power of right thought; there is nothing that can be substituted for it. Our highest concept of everything is the best that we can express; therefore the more spiritual the thinking, the more is expressed of health, harmony, and better environment. All is mental whether upon a good or an evil plane. The history of the past is the record of the expression of thought; all present activity is the expression of thought. The most dramatic event in all history, as well as the most tragic, was the crucifixion of Jesus, when the evil thought of his time found expression in the thought of one man; while the most sublime event, the most divine expression of God's love to humanity, was the resurrection of Jesus brought about by Jesus' right thinking when he overcame death and revealed the way of salvation for all mankind.

Everyone yearns for health, peace, and life in abundance. Throughout the world not one man can be found who will say that he does not want these things. Christian Science can bestow them, not in the way or after the manner of the world, but by taking away the sins of the world through the spiritualization of thought. Christian Science does not require the giving up of anything that is good and true. It is only the false gods of material beliefs that must be gotten rid of in order to gain that which is altogether lovely. Christian Science teaches that only as we know God can we possess and express the things most desirable. Paul, referring to what had been written hundreds of years before by the prophet Isaiah (64:4), writes in his first letter to the Corinthians (2:9), "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." Christian Science replaces the old theological concept of heaven as a place of inaction with nothing to do with a heaven of activity, the activity of right thought. This is identical with Jesus' concept when he plainly said that heaven is not a place nor a locality, but that it is found within; and he never said that one must die in order to reach it. It is through the purification of thought, the regeneration of individual consciousness that heaven is gained, it is therefore a present possibility. If the thought of every man, woman, and child were purified to the Godlike point of knowing nothing but good in daily and hourly thinking, that for which Jesus prayed, God's kingdom on earth as it is in heaven, would appear. The kingdom of heaven is found in individual consciousness.

Whatever will destroy fear becomes the benefactor of humanity, because fear is the cause of most of the wretchedness and woe, sickness, poverty, and death of the world. Every human being is subject to the continual and aggressive arguments of fear. Many people live in constant fear of death, and millions are dying every year because they believe that suffering, disease, and death are inevitable. The desire to live is innate and natural, but constant fear and the contemplation of disease and death bring disastrous experiences. The socalled laws of the human mind are based upon fear and limitation, because of the ignorance of what constitutes real law, and as a result man limits himself in every direction. This state of thought results in discouragement and weakness. It enfeebles man's ability to accomplish the good that he desires to accomplish. In other words, it is the claim of evil that God is limited in his opportunity to express good to man. When it is understood that all thought is expressed after its own kind or quality, men will be more watchful of their thought processes. Mrs. Eddy has given the remedy for the correction of all erroneous thinking in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" when she says, "Stand porter at the door of thought. Admitting only such conclusions as you wish to see realized in bodily results, you will control yourself harmoniously." (Science and Health, p. 392.) God gave man dominion over the whole earth, and this certainly means dominion over fear, and over his own body.

One of the most pernicious beliefs which beset humanity is the fear of inherited disease or of the inherited tendency or inclination to certain diseases. The law of heredity was completely annulled when Jesus healed the man blind from his birth. If man is the image and likeness of God, he cannot inherit discord or any evil, and there is no law of heredity to bind him. God is infinite good and sends no punishment and no curse upon his creation. That portion of Scripture which refers to visiting the sins of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation is sometimes understood as a contradiction of this, but when the second commandment is read in its entirety it is found to be a warning of the penalty whicl follows hatred of God. It carries with it a rich promise for those who are loving and obedient.

The success of the Christian Science movement does not depend upon the great numbers of its adherents, but wholly upon its works, the healing of all manner of disease and discord which it is accomplishing with such marked success. This is the justification of its existence and the assurance of its great future on earth. When John the Baptist, whose spiritual perception went far beyond that of those about him in the discernment of the Christ, was assailed by doubt, he appealed to Jesus to know if he really were the Christ who was to come. Jesus sent back not a long theological discourse, but the simple appeal to let the works bear witness to his Messianic mission. "Tell John," he said, "what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached. And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me." (Luke 7:22.) This covers the whole of human need and this proof o the practical operation of Christianity will always be the witness of Christ, Truth. For centuries mankind has been trying to solve the problem of healing. So far in the history of mortal man, there is nothing known in socalled science, philosophy, or medicine that equals the scientific healing of Jesus. No other system claims to be an exact science; the Christ method of healing is an exact science and does heal.

Jesus announced that he came to destroy the works of the devil and to do his father's will. His professed followers cannot question that he came to do that which was lawful and right. In the destruction of all evil he proved that disease as well as sin is not in accord with the law of God, but is the work of the devil or one evil. He devoted his whole life to proving the availability of God fo man under every circumstance. He used no material means, he ascribed no credit to himself, but always gave God the glory. If Jesus healed in accordance with the will of God, it must have been in accordance with the law of God, and this law is as effective today as when Jesus was upon earth. Salvation is a divine idea, therefore, for all eternity. Jesus did not limit the healing to his day alone, when he instructed his followers to go out into the world to preach the gospel to every nation and to heal the sick. Added to this was his admonition to those who believe on him to do greater works than he had done, not greater in quality but in quantity. Jesus individually did all there was to do; he worked out his own salvation and clearly defined the way whereby man can individually work out his own redemption. He said, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do."

There are many professing Christians today who say that they believe in the omnipotence of God, but is this true when recourse is constantly taken to material systems of healing? The application of matter to matter for the healing of disease is the practice of pagan centuries. It may be applied today in changed forms, by methods believed to be more progressive and efficacious, but diseases nave continued to multiply, and humanity goes on suffering because God is left out of these systems of healing. This omission accounts for the long list of so-called incurable diseases, believed incurable only because men have said that they could not heal them. Jesus never said that any case brought to him was incurable or difficult to heal. He resolved disease into the mental realm and said to the man who was brought to him on a bed, sick of the palsy, "Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee"; (Matthew 9:2) and when the scribes accused him of blasphemy, he replied, "Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise and walk?" (Matthew 9:4, 5.) This showed that he considered the infirmity mental, the result of wrong thought. At another time he said to a man whom he had healed, "Behold, thou art made whole, sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee." (John 5:14.) Christian Science makes men whole by the destruction of a desire to sin. It creates a natural desire to know God's will and overcomes a love of ease in matter, thereby giving freedom and activity to thought.

The purpose of a Christian Science treatment is not to make a man comfortable in materialty that he may go on living at ease in matter, neither does it enable one to sin without the forever consequence of suffering as the result of sin. Its purpose is the sublime one of regeneration, that man may overcome sin, sickness, and death.

Christian Science is not a faith cure. The healing is not accomplished through the mere concentration of thought, holding thought for another, nor through the exercise of the human will; that is, by willing the sick to recover. The entire teaching and practice of Christian Science rests upon the basic fact that God is all. The power of a Christian Science treatment lies in the fact that it is the realization of the omnipotence of God, of the power of truth over all error in accordance with the divine will or law. When all mankind can say with understanding, "Thy will be done," then shall we have God's kingdom on earth as in heaven, because the will of God is health, harmony, peace, and plenty. The will of God is the reign of good; the manifestations of good are natural and right though the world has so long thought of evil as natural and inevitable that it seems a miracle to human sense when good appears. When the positive light of truth is brought to bear upon the false sense of evil, evil disappears.

The objection is sometimes made by those who do not understand the method of Christian Science healing that nothing is being done for the sick who have turned to it for aid. Is one relying upon nothing, when one turns to the supreme source and cause of all things, the power which created the universe and man? Because God is the only creator He is abundantly able to care for His own creation and to keep His divine law in operation. God is greater than any disease or evil condition and there is nothing to fear from looking to the only source and origin of all that exists for help and healing. Does not Scripture say that God is a God at hand and not afar off, an ever present help? Christian Science declares that all that is necessary for the healing of the sick is included in the one omnipotent Mind.

There are today great numbers of people on earth who, in time past, in hopeless bondage to fear, misery, and disease, were compelled to turn to God for help because all else had failed them. Ask these people if they were doing nothing when they turned to Christian Science for healing. They will tell you that after everything else had failed, they learned that the only thing to do is to rely upon God. For many years in every Christian Science church throughout the world, on Wednesday evening a testimonial or experience meeting has been held. During this time millions of authenticated cases of healing have been related, authenticated in the sense that those giving the testimony are generally those who have had the actual experience of healing. Many of these people say that by the reading of Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, known as the textbook of Christian Science, they have been healed of diseases classified as incurable. From cover to cover of this wonderful book, Mrs. Eddy declares the power and availability of God. These people, redeemed from disease and sin, say that they are better men and women because of the ministration of Christian Science; they say that through the textbook, they have learned to understand and love God, that it has made them devout students of the Bible, and that it has taught them to pray intelligently. They express the deepest gratitude for having been delivered from paralyzing fear, from bad disposition, and temperamental tendencies, the direct cause of much disease and discord. These people who have learned the majesty and might of goodness and the utter powerlessness of evil are not a deluded people. They know that the kind of mentality which causes disease cannot cure it, and that this change did not take place through any ism or mental suggestion, or through the withering influence of hypnotism, but that it came through the hallowing influence of Christ, Truth ever operating through divine law.

The consecrated study of Science and Health is moulding the lives of thousands upon thousands into better health, honesty, justice, and purity. As time goes on, it will find its place in human history as the greatest benefactor of this age; and no attempt of evil can ever displace it or overthrow it.

The purpose of Christian Science practice is to help others and to enable them to learn from the textbook how to practice and to demonstrate the truth taught therein. The practitioner who realizes most clearly that there is no disease in matter to be treated, but rather that there is a false sense of the patient to be corrected, will accomplish the best results and gain a victory over error. If disease is absolutely ruled out of thought it will not be found in the body.

Throughout all time the Christ mind has appeared as the Saviour. It was revealed through the teaching of the prophets: it was demonstrated to its fullness in the life and works of Christ Jesus; it was declared as the only way of salvation by Paul; it was brought to this age by Mrs. Eddy through the revelation of Christian Science; throughout the successive steps of this revelation, the healing is conspicuous. Is it not then incumbent upon every professed follower of Christianity to prove in some degree the mind that was in Christ by casting out evil and healing the sick? Any effort to retard the progress and unfoldment of the Christ idea is but an incident in its history. Mrs. Eddy refers to the eternality of the Christ in Science and Health as follows: "Truth's immortal idea is sweeping down the centuries gathering beneath its wings the sick and sinning. My weary hope tries to realize that happy day when man shall recognize the Science of Christ and love his neighbor as himself; when he shall realize God's omnipotence and the healing power of divine Love in what it has done and is doing for mankind."

No right thinking Christian Scientist claims that he has attained perfection today. He does not claim that the full scope of healing has yet been accomplished, but he is striving constantly for more of the mind which was in Christ Jesus and is therefore a better man and a more desirable citizen in any community; he thinks more seriously of his vote that it may be cast on the side of civic righteousness, he is in sympathy with every effort to bring about better conditions for humanity through the regeneration of mankind.

Autocracy was not destroyed nor even rendered inactive on that day in November, 1918, when the armistice was signed. Many ramifications of autocracy are appearing today, which must be recognized and resisted in order to preserve the liberty and freedom of our homes, of our children, and of our greatest American institution, the public school system. Throughout the country there is a concerted effort to force compulsory vaccination and objectionable socalled health laws into the public schools through legislation. If vaccination has all the virtue claimed for it by certain individuals, people would not have to be forced to accept it. Some of the best medical authorities consider it dangerous and the cause of some of the most malignant diseases. For the few to impose that which is considered dangerous and malignant upon the many through the process of law, is far from the ideals of those who founded this great democracy. The framers of the constitution of the United States discerned in part, our rights as sons of God, and incorporated them in that document as the inalienable rights of man. We must prevent the slightest intrenchment upon these rights if we would save this great republic for posterity.

The Bible, often referred to as the book of books, is too seldom read and too little understood. Too often is it shut away in the bookcase, or is made a depository for all sorts of memoranda, a collection of what-nots. Because the Bible depicts different conditions of thought, it is of especial interest to Christian Scientists, for they recognize in the history of the prophets, the children of Israel, and that of the disciples their own experience in the warfare between good and evil as it takes places in each individual consciousness. Christ Jesus through his teaching, entrusted to his followers the spiritual warfare. The struggle at present seems to be between the material and the spiritual sense of things, but progress makes it less struggle and more triumph of good over evil, as it should be. Problems do not discourage or dismay the one who is thinking rightly, for he regards them as opportunities to prove God's allness. Paul said, "Thy grace is sufficient," and the Christian Scientist learns that God's grace is always sufficient unto the day or hour of seeming evil.

For centuries the world has stumbled on without a definite understanding of what constitutes true prayer. Under great stress of suffering or disaster there is sometimes a desire to know how to pray, but in spite of tears and importunate yearning, much of the prayer of the world is never answered. In James we read, "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss." (James 4:3.)

Mrs. Eddy teaches that the only effectual prayer is the prayer of Jesus —the recognition of the allness of God and the availablity of that allness for every human need. True prayer is not a supplication through blind faith, in other words, asking God to answer prayer; it is utilizing and making practical the goodness of God. True prayer brings thought into accord with divine Mind and declares and demonstrates the spiritual facts of being.

There are today more than a hundred different sects claiming to be followers of Jesus, none of which make the healing of the sick imperative. Jesus' whole mission was one of healing, and the need of the world today is for a return to the primitive Christianity which inspires its followers to emulate Jesus in his teaching and practice. Christians must prove that they accept the teachings of Jesus by fulfilling his commands—by doing his works.

It is sometimes asked by those turning to Christian Science for help, if it is necessary to have faith in order to be healed. It would be unreasonable to expect those who have no understanding of Christian Science to have faith in it. There are many in the ranks of Christian Scientists who experienced the most violent antagonism when Christian Science was first presented to them, but after seeing what it did for others, they consented to make the experiment and were touched by its beneficent influence.

Little more than fifty years ago there was just one Christian Scientist on earth, Mary Baker Eddy. She says in "Retrospection and Introspection," a short biographical account of her own life, that from her very childhood she was impelled by a hunger and thirst after divine things, a desire for something better than matter and apart from it. This spiritual desire made her always consecrated to the endeavor to know and understand God. With maturing years came the conviction of the unreliable nature of all things material. A time came when she was given up to die from the effects of an injury supposed to be fatal; she then called for her Bible, and while reading of the cures wrought by Jesus, realized that God is as able to heal now as in centuries past, and she immediately arose from her bed restored to health. With her healing came the determination to know the science or truth which had wrought such a change in her life. She devoted years to the research; and at last in the divine and natural order of events, in 1875, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" was given to the world.

In this book Mrs. Eddy has set forth a scientific system with definite rules for practice, which will enable any sincere seeker to prove the truth of her revelation. In the early years of her ministry, with sublime patience and courage she waited, worked, and prayed, until she gained a handful of students to assist her in establishing Christian Science on earth. Today Christian Science is known throughout the whole world; in many remote places there is a society or church organization, while the larger cities have many overflowing churches. Mrs. Eddy also founded and directed many activities in connection with her church, which will always be of great benefit to humanity.

Christian Science does not advocate the superiority of woman; its appeal is for a universal spiritual suffrage, which equalizes and unifies the thought of men and women and will emancipate the whole human race. Mrs. Eddy never encouraged the slightest personal adoration, but always turned her followers to the worship of God, away from personality to Principle. Humanity will sometime realize that it can never repay its debt of gratitude to Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science.

The Christian Science Church, with its form of government founded by Mrs. Eddy, stands for pure democracy, the brotherhood of man, universal participation, growth, and culture. Each individual has his place in Divine Mind and cannot usurp the place of another. The by-laws of the Church, contained in the Church Manual, originated by Mrs. Eddy, are for the purpose of maintaining and preserving the integrity of the organization and its activities, and are requisite as long as material organization is necessary. The tenets of the Christian Science Church, set forth in Science and Health, teach its followers to be "merciful, just and pure"; and this means obedience to the highest moral standard. To digress in moral integrity is fatal to the progress of a student of Christian Science.

It is evident that the sinning man held in bondage by ignorance and superstition is not God's man. Before mortal man reaches the consciousness of his oneness with God, he has a battle to wage within. All error must be overcome within and individual consciousness is the scene of conflict. The Christian Science Church stands for absolute reliance upon God and His Christ. It stands for the achievement of every good thing, and for complete salvation from sickness and sin through man's dominion over all evil.

In closing I will also say for your remembrance, he who has suffered the pangs of keen disappointment, the sorrow of great loss, the humiliation of broken pride, will surely find in Christian Science a solace. It is indeed the Comforter which wipes away all tears, binds up the broken hearted, and restores all things.

SIDE LIGHTS

That intangible something known as style, has injected inself into the business realm as a new problem, writes F. Baker in the New York Tribune. Some branches of the trades that fall under the general heading of apparel appear to be suffering from too-frequent changes of styles for the stability of the markets. Others are complaining of a lack of style and are making strenuous efforts to infuse it into their industries in the belief that it will stimulate consumer demand and so lift their particular trade from the depression.

The value of style as a business stimulant is best seen in the present condition of the shoe industry. New styles in women's shoes have created a consumer demand that is keeping the women's shoe factories of the country running almost at capacity at present. The manufacturers of men's shoes, however, are complaining of a lack of business, and in comparing their lot with their more fortunate brethren who are turning out women's shoes, are inclined to lay the blame on the lack of style—that is, really new styles—in men's shoes.

The women's apparel trade had a fairly active spring season, due largely, in the opinion of manufacturers, to new styles that were offered to the consuming public. On the other hand, the conservative types of clothing offered the men have enabled the latter to wear their old clothing longer, thus reducing the volume of trade in this line.

Among manufacturers and retailers of men's clothing, hats, shoes, gloves and other accessories, there is a deep-rooted conviction that the average American citizen has taken a step backward—or several steps, in fact—in the matter of dress in the last few years. The economies that the public was called upon to practice during war times resulted in the elimination of gay attire. Evening clothes were taboo. Silk hats were regarded as unpatriotic. Gloves, except in cold weather, were frowned upon, and walking sticks became almost obsolete. Many anticipated a reaction as soon as the stress of war was lifted, but so far the reaction has not appeared. Even in the boom period of 1919 and early 1920, often referred to as the "silk shirt" era, those who might be looked to as leaders of fashion disregarded many of the rules of dress laid down in pre-war days, and this failure to observe the conventions in apparel still exists.

Clothing manufacturers regard with some bitterness the growing use of the Tuxedo or dinner coat at social functions where women are present. The short jacket, they assert, was designed as a club or "stag" garment and is incorrect in mixed gatherings, yet even among the social elite it is being worn at balls and to the theater and opera.

The high silk hat is little seen at social functions, the soft hat, the older the better, having almost completely replaced it. Yet the dress charts call for the regulation silk hat as the correct complement of evening garments. In the matter of overcoats despite the dictates of fashion, polo coats and automobile ulsters are frequently seen covering garments at social functions.

The crowning insult against the conventions, however, was seen by the shoe manufacturers. At a recent gathering of footwear producers, several members of the trade asserted that they had seen footwear ranging all the way from black calfskin to tan brogues worn by men attired in evening dress. What appeared to be worse was the fact that some shoe manufacturers themselves were guilty of the practice.

Sales of soft collars in many haberdasheries today are in excess of the sales of starched collars, and the soft collar is correct only for country or sports wear. One Sunday evening recently, at a popular hotel in the socially select center of Westchester county, more than half the men appeared in golf suits, including knickerbockers, with golf clubs or other appurtenances of the game strangely lacking. A manufacturer of men's clothing reviewed the gathering and decided that golf suits, originally intended for wear only on the links, had become fashionable everywhere. He fears that they will soon be worn to business. With the long trousers instead of the knickers, tweed suits are being worn in the business sections of our large cities in increasing numbers.

The point that clothing, shoe, and accessory manufacturers make of all this is the fact that American men lack the spruceness that formerly characterized them. This is being reflected in the habits of the younger generation with the result that clothes are playing a less important part in the daily lives of the young men upon whom the apparel manufacturers depend chiefly for their trade. Business undoubtedly has suffered from this development, if the statements of the garment, shoe and hat producers are correct, and already plans are being made to remedy the situation.

It is our inveterate habit to isolate our social problems in water-tight compartments, so to speak, and to study them as seperate phenomena unrelated to one another. Just at the present time we are gravely concerned about the behavior of our young women—and of some women who are not young—in the matter of dress, deportment and amusements. The Literary Digest reminds us that the religious press of the country is actually teeming with exhortation, denunciation and protest. One might suppose that even the war itself was an affair of insignificance in comparison with short skirts and new dances, that not even Prussian Caesarism was so great a threat to civilization.

Admitting for the sake of argument that the evil is something more than a transitory aberration that can be trusted to cure itself, we may still ask ourselves what we are to do about it. Unless we are to plunge into a veritable orgy of sumptuary and blue laws we seem to be helpless in the matter. And he must indeed be sanguine who believes that any considerable number of young women can be compelled by laws into long skirts and the minuet. Moreover, young women have votes nowadays and are not to be assailed with impunity. They might retaliate by inviting men to mind their own business and reform themselves.

If women are allowing liberty to degenerate into license, they are doing no more than the rest of us. It is not an evil that belongs exclusively to one sex or one class. For a generation or more we have been industriously preaching the doctrine that there are no restrictions upon human conduct except those imposed by law, and that even law can be flouted if it can be done without punishment. The spirit of insurrection has been hailed as a sort of virtue, whether it be in the home, the school, the college or the community at large. There was a time when there was an inflexible code of the things that were "not done," law or no law, but we allowed it to be broken down. We applauded the wildest excesses of the feminists and surrendered to them. In a dozen other directions we tacitly established the principle that every one had a right to do as he or she pleased, subject only to the power of someone else to prevent him or her. Self-expression—whatever that may mean—became a fetish. It invaded even the nursery. We tolerated the excesses of the profiteer, the capitalist, the labor unionist, and the bolshevist. Having broken down the unwritten law, we tried to compensate for it by the written law and failed miserably. Sumptuary laws, prohibition, crazy enactments of all sorts, followed each other in a horrid array, and made confusion worse confounded. And now we are asked to believe that the ark of the covenant is to be found in long skirts, low heels, and dances of decency. But if the morality of the nation depends upon such things as these, then it must be said regretfully that the morality of the nation is in a hopeless state.

The remedy is, of course, to be found in a public opinion that discourages, not only the misdeeds of the jeune fille, but all other misdeeds, a public opinion that ceases to make a stupid joke of misconduct, that restores the code of the things that are "not done" either in puublic or private life. It is a slow remedy, but there is no other. Certainly we shall find no cure in the policeman, who will be just as helpless as the rest of us against the extravagences of the young woman who has been carefully taught that to do as she pleases is a heaven-sent right and who is now exercising that right in her own peculiar, but not always unattractive, way.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

BUSINESS AIDED BY RESERVE BOARD

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 28.—A boom to business will be hastened by a decision of Federal reserve banks to cut re-discount rates. Officials are firm in this opinion. Money will be more readily available to borrowers at easier rates.

The federal reserve board has reports from all districts showing urgent demand for new funds. A great amount of domestic development work, requiring new capital, is reported to Governor Harding.

With easier money market conditions goveernment fiscal authorities in communications to bankers have stressed the necessity of giving priority to American enterprises. The federal reserve board has scented danger in the tendency of some banking quarters to give heed to the demands of foreign enterprises.

From reports to the board, officials learn that many foreign concerns have shaped their affairs with a view to obtaining their financial support from American bankers.

Member banks of the federal reserve system have been cautioned that this foreign demand creates a situation which may be fraught with danger to American industrial and agricultural interests unless bankers carefully conserve surplus resources for the benefit of American concerns.

The attitude of government fiscal officers, made plain in latest bulletins to bankers, reflects a purpose to look out for "America first," and to avoid highly speculative ventures, involving the tieing up of American credit that should be employed in so-called essential industries at home.

Greater financial strength of the reserve banking system, officials said, reflects to a notable degree the manner in which liquidation has proceeded since inflation was at its peak less than a year ago. Officials believe liquidation has reached near the normal point in many lines of business.

PIECE OF CHEESE CAUSES DISMISSAL

(By International News Service)

OMAHA, Neb., June 28.—A cheese mix-up in central police court on Wednesday resulted in the dismissal of a complaint filed against Swift & Co., by Thomas Zacek of the state food bureau. The packing concern was charged with selling packages of limburger cheese with description of the contents not printed conspicuously on the package.

When two packages of cheese were duly brought forth to be inspected by the court, an error was discovered. The wrong packages had been returned from the food inspector's office at Lincoln. Without the Swift cheese, Judge Foster held there was no case and dismissed the complaint.

Fusion of concrete has been noticed after some fires in reinforced concrete buildings. The tests by the U. S. bureau of standards have been shown that some small specimens of concrete may be fused by a temperature of about 2200 degrees F, which is about the melting point of manganese and considerably below that of nickel or iron, but it is supposed that the fusing temperature varies with the kind of sand and cement used.

RADIUM

Radium, the most powerful and wonderful of elements, is a lustrous white metal. It glows in the dark, and some force within it, its "intra-atomic energy," keeps it constantly a little warmer than its surroundings. It changes spontaneously into other things, shooting off atoms of helium, the gas that is to supplant the inflammable gas hydrogen for filling balloons, and at the same time giving off a heavyv gas, niton, the heaviest gas among the chemical elements. No force that the chemist can bring to bear on radium can make it do this, nor can it be prevented from doing it.

It is a chemical element, a metal disintegrating into two other chemical elements existing in gaseous forms which have no ability to form compounds with any other known element. Yet after 1760 years only half of a given specimen of radium will have thus disintegrated, and after a second period of 1760 years one-quarter of the original specimen will still be active. Thus the curative power of this element which Mme. Curie and her husband discovered, and a gram of which Mme. Curie received from the women of America, cannot be measured in length of time nor conceived by the finite mind.

Some day, perhaps, some scientist will discover a way to making niton, the radium "emanation," act upon metals like lead and iron and change them into gold or platinum. Research along the lines of the power which radium has, both as a curative and a factor in transmutation, is pregnant with possibilities.

INDIAN STORY OF CREATION

Menaboshu Made the Earth, According to the Legend—Great Lakes Are Bear Tracks.

Menaboshu, according to the legend of the Chippewa Indians, was the creator of all things. He avowed one day that he would make the earth. But the almighty creator did not find his task easy, for he wanted to make the earth larger than any other thing. Truly he rounded the soil between his powerful hands, until it grew into a great ball; but, freed from their touch, it fell in a heap. In this way he tried again and again; each time he saw the mass crumble. Then Menaboshu mixed water with the soil to form mud; and, besides, moulded it about a great rock, when behold—a still larger ball. The mass, at last, kept the chosen shape.

The creator, pausing to rest from his toil, beheld his matchless work.

Menaboshu next undertook to devise the many living things which dwell on the earth. Before the surface of the giant ball had time to dry, in fact, the lusty god began to make the animals, last of which was man—began to make the animals, one kind after another, on the broad palm of his left hand. Among others he made the bears.

The first bear soon escaped from its maker. The wild beast, with its untried strength, leaped to the earth and bounded straightaway across the continent of North America. But the land where the sprawling bear's huge paws struck the earth was still so fresh and soft that they left deep tracks. All was strangely new.

These deep marks on our continent quickly filled with water. Scarcely had the frightened bear bounded away, when the beautiful lakes—Superior, Michigan, Huron, Ontario and Erie—appeared, full to the brim. They are old as the first bear's tracks.

The creator now hastened to make rain. At sight of the water, filling the lakes, he began to fear, lest the soil again fall in a heap; and he caused the rain to fall from the sky, so long that the lakes overflowed their shores. And the water from Superior, seeking the level, flowed toward Erie, the track of the foot which struck first and settled, under the bear's weight, much lower than the others—the water, on its way to the sea dropped abruptly from Ontario into Erie. And lo! the Falls of Niagara!

And Menaboshu, ending his labors, again beheld his work.

The Power of Silence.

There is nothing in this world which works to greater advantage than to be silent. No one likes to be ignored. It hurts like the mischief to have an antagonist throw up a barricade against which we have no power. The moment the other fellow is silent, that minute all detailed plans of attack are worthless. The only thing one can do is to be silent also, and there you are! Though but an armistice, the action of conflict is over.

The one who refuses to converse may be one you have no use for. Still it bothers you. You are annoyed, your pride is injured at the realization that the one you hold in scorn has the opportunity to ignore you. The moment you resort to tantalizing banter you acknowledge the final defeat. If you fall in line and imitate you compliment. The secret is to steal the thunder first.

If one you love keeps silent it hurts twice. Once because you have no idea how deeply you may have offended to bring down upon your head such punishment, and again because the loved one could ignore you. Just think over the conquering points of this silent weapon.—New York Mail.

Tears Brighten the Eyes.

There is a very widespread belief that the process of crying tends to weaken the eyes and rob them of brightness. Actually, the truth lies in the opposite direction, according to an oculist.

The shedding of tears (provided that the weeping is not overdone) is one of the greatest aids to softness and brightness of the eyes.

The explanation is this: The eyes need a bath just as our bodies do. There is a certain quality in the "tear liquid" which does not exist in water, and that is why a tear bath is of much greater value than a mere bathing with cold or warm water.

There is a possibility that one of the reasons for the superiority of feminine eyes in point of limpidity and brightness over the male optics is the tendency of the gentler sex to indulge in more or less frequent outbreaks of tears.

The moral is that if you want to have what novelists call "eyes like the fishpools of Heshoon," give the eyes a tear bath at least once a week.

Wants a Free Trip.

Railroads require that when a body is shipped to any point the undertaker shall purchase two full tickets, but it is optional whether any one accompany the body.

The following unique proposal was sent to a New York undertaker recently:

"Within the next five weeks I am due at Santa Fe, N. M., and as I understand there are times when the near relatives of one who has passed into hazy oblivion cannot come to New York to take charge of same, I hereby hold myself open at any time within the above named period to accompany said oblivious party to any point in the West or Southwest as a matter of covering my transportation in exchange for said services."

"What's the charge, officer?"

"Vagrancy, your honor. He was loafing around a street corner."

"Ah, impersonating an officer."

Uncle Walt's Story

A BESETTING SIN

"I AM sure in my own mind that Mr. Griggings is drinking," remarked the landlady in the tone of one who views with alarm. "A man doesn't have such a red nose unless he is consuming intoxicating liquors."

"I have cautioned you many times, Mrs. Jiggers, against jumping to conclusions, which is your besetting sin," said the star boarder. "Many reputations have been ruined by such remarks as yours. Any physician will tell you it is possible to have a crimson beak and still be a teetotaler. I am not on intimate terms with Mr. Griggins, although I call at his store now and then to purchase some of his cigars, which are made of ensilage. He sells the worst smokes in this town, and should be rebuked for that, but I'd never suspect him of being an inebriate.

"He might become one if it happened to rain gin some night, and he had a barrel under the rainspout, but so long as firewater costs money there isn't much danger of Mr. Griggins going astray. He is the most passionately economical man I ever saw. His respect for a penny is abnormal. A week or two ago I bought a cigar at his remnant counter, and was short one cent when I paid for it. I told him I'd pay the cent the next time I dropped in, and I fully intended to, but I forgot to drop in for several days. During that period, Mrs. Jiggers, I met him on the street several times, and he boned me for that cent, with tears in his eyes, at every encounter. A man of that character won't waste any money in riotous living. You may paste that in your Sunday bonnet, my dear Mrs. Jigggers, for your guidance when you are trying to size up the caliber of your friends and acquaintances.

"I met Mr. Octagon on the street today and he told me a moving tale illustrating the unwisdom of jumping to conclusions. The other evening when he stepped onto the front porch to see if the newspaper had come, he found a sample package of snuff, which had been left there by some immoral distributor.

"Mr. Octagon had never taken a pinch of snuff in his life, and he was curious to know what the effects were. Curiosity, I may remark incidentally, is another weakness responsible for much trouble and suffering, and I trust you will guard against it hereafter, Mrs. Jiggers. It leads elderly landladies to ransack the trunks of their boarders and read old letters which were not meant for alien eyes. The fact that you are blushing shows that you are not entirely calloused.

"Well, Mr. Octagon put the packet of snuff in his vest pocket and sat around the fire until his wife left the room on some errand, and then he tore open the paper and inhaled a few grains of the stuff. He says he thought he would sneeze the top of his head off, and dislocate his ears. He whooped and kerchooed until you could have heard him half a mile away, and then his wife came rushing in.

"'Ebenezer Octagon,' said she, 'you go to bed this minute or you'll be down with pneumonia tomorrow. Don't stop to argue—I won't hear a word! Off with you!'

"Octagon couldn't get in a word, and didn't want to very much, being ashamed to have his wife know he was experimenting with snuff; so he trundled off to bed at seven o'clock in the evening, and his wife rubbed goose grease all over his neck and chest and piled 500 pounds of blankets on him, and made him drink three or four gallons of yarb tea that tasted like the morning after the Fourth of July, and he lay there sweating all night, the most miserable man in town, all because his wife possessed the feminine weakness for jumping to conclusions.

'So let us be on our guard against such mental infirmities, Mrs. Jiggers, and meanwhile I would suggest that you replenish the maple sirup pitcher. These pancakes are too dry and dusty to eat without a lubricant."

She—Yes; as far from the pocketbook as possible.

Water Power in France.

The utilization of water power in France has increased by more than 50 per cent since the commencement of the war, and by the end of 1921 the available water power will be double the amount installed at the outbreak of the war.

His Job.

"This new nurse wants to know what is his special job. He is an expugilist."

"All right. Tell him he will come in handy to put the patients to sleep."

ROME, June 28.—Two Italian cruisers arrived at Porto Baros today, following an outbreak of rioting at Fiume in which five persons were killed and ten wounded. Porto Baros adjoins Fiume.

ENDEAVORERS AT VERDUGO PARK

Up at Verdugo park yesterday afternoon, young folks of the Junior and Intermediate unions of the Christian Endeavor enjoyed the quiet of the open in the shade of liveoak trees along the banks of the stream and the pleasure of competition, vieing with one another in athletic sports.

During the late hours of the morning, the Juniors, including boys and girls up to the age of 15, began the exodus to the park under the direction of Miss Anna Shields, who had arranged with the convention commissary department to prepare box luncheons. The day was spent in playing games and other forms of recreation.

By 3 o'clock most of the members of the Intermediate section, 300 strong, which is presided over by Miss Edith McDonald, had arrived at the park, and the baseball game scheduled between members of the division from Los Angeles and those here as delegates from the rest of the state, was started. The Los Angeles team took the big edge of the count by accumulating 26 runs while their opponents had to be content with a trifling 17. Following the game there was a series of races open to all Intermediates.

A picnic supper was served in the late afternoon and the remainder of the outing was devoted to a varied program of readings and songs.

the mountains. He and his company took the doctor on with them.

Dr. Shelton's description at the reception he received as they journeyed on, the joy of the people in the Christian villages who had been praying for months for his release, the joyful cavalcade that accompanied him on the journey to Lhaso, the capital, his affecting meeting with Dr. Osgood, who came 2500 miles to aid in the search, and with Colonel Drysdale, Fred Smith of the Chicago Tribune and Thornton of the Standard Oil, the men who, with Father Bailey, did so much work in sitrring up three great governments to rescue the doctor—all these things are told most dramatically by Dr. Shelton, and were listened to with interest by the audience last evening.

Prayers Answered

As soon as possible the doctor sent a wire to his wife, and as the party neared Lhassa his daughters ran out several miles to meet him. Doris outran Dorothy, and when she got to her father her first words were, "Papa, God does answer prayers, doesn't He?"

THEATERS

Palace Grand

Despite heavy attendance at every performance, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" will positively be shown for the last time tonight at 8:15, at the Palace Grand. Capacity houses would undoubtedly warrant an indefinite continuance of the run, it is announced by Manager Robert Jensen, but advance bookings of the film make it impossible to postpone its engagement here.

Rex Ingram directed this spectacle, while June Mathis wrote the scenario.

The picture is well worth the advanced admission prices the Palace Grand is charging for this feature.

Glendale Theatre

All of the elements which have made the previous Zane Grey-Benj. B. Hampton productions so popular are embodied in the newest Hodkinson release, "The Man of the Forest," which is being shown at the Glendale theater today. There is romance, soul-stirring action, humor, drama and suspense. And the entire production is mounted with the infinite attention to detail which Benj. B. Hampton knows so well how to bestow. The cast, too, is an added factor in favor of this photoplay, for it is made up of some of the most popular players of the present day.

Claire Adams, Robert McKim, Carl Gantvoort, Jean Hersholt, Eugenia Gilbert—all the tried and true players of the silver sheet, are in "The Man of the Forest."

PATRIOTIC SERVICE NEXT SUNDAY

Under the auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic and kindred organizations, a patriotic service will be held in the First Methodist church, corner Wilson and Kenwood, next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

To this service, all patriotic organizations—the Women's Relief Corps, National Guard, American Legion, Sons of Veterans, etc., are cordially invited. The Glendale churches and all the people of the vicinity are desired present as guests of the Grand Army.

A program worthy of a religious observance of our greatest holiday, the Fourth of July, will be portrayed. A patriotic address will be given entitled "The Mission of Our Great Republic," by Rev. R. Warren Mottern.

Recent reports state that Andrew Carnegie established 2811 libraries.
